This Victorian, 2 bay wide building highlights a gable end that faces the street. Although it has been covered with aluminum siding, it also retains a number of important design features including a Victorian 4 panel door (rear elevation) and a number of round-headed arch windows in the upper gable, with an elaborate three-sided oriel window on the water facade. Its front porch, with chamfered corner posts is retained within a bricked-in addition. The building is also virtually intact inside, and contains significant interior finishes, an elaborate stair, and colored art glass in sidelights and transom, which mark the front entryway.
